SINGAPORE, 27 September 2023 – Southeast Asia's biggest Halloween event – Universal Studios Singapore Halloween Horror Nights at Resorts World Sentosa – will kick off its eleventh edition on 29 September, bringing to life all-new scares and immersive experiences for horror fans. Acclaimed Director JQ Lee and Producer Charles Park of Netflix's global hit zombie series All of Us Are Dead joined the media preview on 26 September where they had a first look at how the series was brought to life in the world's first horror attraction inspired by it. From the horrifying discovery in the medical bay to the nail-biting classroom fight, fans can look forward to the recreation of iconic scenes that will take them along the students' perilous journey after a zombie outbreak in their high school.

Hailing all the way from Seoul to experience the scare attraction first-hand in Singapore, Director JQ Lee shared, "It's very exciting to see All of Us Are Dead manifest from a 2D experience on-screen into the real world. This is all possible because of the fans and their consistent love. It is exhilarating to experience the horror attraction in-person, and I feel young again. I hope visitors will feel the same and come to love this entertaining experience."

"I am so excited that Hyosan High School is being recreated into a Halloween Horror Nights experience at Universal Studios Singapore, huge thanks to the fans and their love for the series. I hope that everyone who has had a good time experiencing it will also look forward to Season 2 of All of Us Are Dead," said Producer Charles Park.

"Netflix's All of Us Are Dead has captivated audiences globally and we are delighted to have the series creators experience first-hand the haunted house inspired by their show at Universal Studios Singapore Halloween Horror Nights 11," said Markham Gannon, Director of Resort Experience at Resorts World Sentosa. "We've faithfully recreated some of the most talked-about scenes which fans will love and put our own unique spin on it to make the house a highly immersive and unforgettable experience."

With Netflix's All of Us Are Dead and The Weeknd: After Hours Til Dawn Nightmare haunted houses, it is the first time that Universal Studios Singapore Halloween Horror Nights will have two haunted houses based on world-famous intellectual properties. Guests can look forward to the full line-up of experiences at the event:
