SINGAPORE, 23 June 2016 – As part of World Oceans Day celebration, S.E.A. Aquarium at Resorts World Sentosa (RWS) today set not one, but two Singapore records for the largest bottle cap mural and the largest photo pledge wall, in a bid to inspire marine conservation. The two records were collectively achieved by visitors to the aquarium and RWS team members who took six days to assemble the two structures and earn the titles in the Singapore Book of Records.

Singapore’s Largest Bottle Cap Mural
In the month of June 2016, more than 60,000 plastic bottle caps were collected by visitors and RWS team members of which 12,860 caps were selected to form the words “I Love The Ocean” on a giant wall mural measuring an impressive 7.7m by 3.6m. The giant, colourful mosaic broke the existing record of 7.2m by 2.3m set in 2015. The initiative delivers a powerful visual message on how each tiny recycling effort counts... and collectively makes a great impact to safeguard the oceans. Visitors can view the mural from now till September at S.E.A. Aquarium.

S.E.A. Aquarium collected approximately 1,270 photographs featuring visitors and RWS team members who have pledged their commitment to saving the world’s oceans through small, simple but effective ways. Each photo is accompanied by a message on how they will protect the oceans, such as not releasing plastics or litter into the oceans, or buying seafood from sustainable sources. These photographs have been pieced together to form a photo mosaic that measures 8.3m by 3.9m emblazoned with the words “I Protect The Ocean”. This initiative raises awareness on how simple behavioural changes can lead to healthy oceans.

The World Oceans Day festival at S.E.A. Aquarium is happening now till 26 June. Visitors to the aquarium can catch a team comprising freediving record holders from Singapore and Malaysia as they plunge into seemingly impossible depths with a single breath of air, or view stunning images at Asia’s first World Oceans Day photo gallery.

In addition, visitors can meet new fishy residents at three thematic habitats – Hawaii, California and the Caribbean – as part of a Tropical SEAFest. Over 200 specimens from more than 40 species are featured in these new permanent exhibits. As part of the World Oceans Day festival, RWS team members and their family will also head down to Tanah Merah coast for an annual beach clean-up on Saturday, 25 June.
